PREFACE.

It has often been regretted, that while the extensive applicability of the rules made by the High Court has caused the publication of several digests of them every year, those of the Small Cause Court should remain obscure and unknown to even those professional men who have constantly to conduct cases in that Court. Yet those rules have an importance of their own and are binding within the jurisdiction of that Court. Not seldom are whole cases lost or the execution of decrees defeated for want of knowledge of a rule of practice of the Court. It is to supply this longfelt want and avoid all this inconvenience and risk that the following compilation of the rules relating to the practice of the Small Cause Court has been made. The suggestion first came from the members of the legal profession and the Compiler has been encouraged in the task by their Honors, the Chief Judge and the other Judges to whom his thanks are due for their valuable suggestions and assistance. He will be satisfied if the book is found to supply a want.
